A Brief History of Photoceramics

Immortalizing loved ones is an age old custom. Of all the methods of funerary portraits, the most common is an imprint of a photograph baked onto porcelain.

First originating in France in 1855, photographic portraits (cameos) became popular in North American cemeteries by the 1890s.

LP Photoceramics offers its customers the art of personalizing crypts, niches, monuments or plaques with high quality portrait Photoceramics (cameos) thereby allowing the tradition to continue.

BILL ENO CHAPEL

PERPETUAL

IN MEMORY OF

REST IN PEACE

For the longest time, memorial light has represented the abiding need to commemorate a loved one. It fulfills the desire for a remembrance ritual while the lit flame of the candle symbolizes a spiritual sense of prayer and recollection.

LP Bronze International has transformed the traditional concept of a public cenotaph, where communities remembered those who died great distances away, into a personal dedication for families and friends.

Today, this tradition can be recreated in your mausoleum, funeral home or chapel with LP Bronze Cenotaphs (Memorial Light Units).

Furthermore, LP Bronze has modernized the concept of lighting candles utilizing LEXLights™ and has turned a temporary flame into a more enduring memorial.
