A Brief History of Photoceramics

Immortalizing loved ones is an age old custom. Of all the methods of funerary portraits, the most common is an imprint of a photograph baked onto porcelain.

First originating in France in the 17th century, photographic portraits (cameos) became popular in North American cemeteries by the 1890s.

LP Photoceramics International

offers its customers the art of personalizing crypts, niches, monuments or plaques with high quality portraitPhotoceramics (cameos). Thereby allowing this tradition to continue.

Traditional or Classic Photoceramics (cameos)

Colour – Classic

The traditional method of hand painting photoceramics is still practiced today by very few artists. LP Photoceramics is the only company in North America that offers the Classic series as it continues to avail itself of this age-old process. One should always consider this a piece of hand painted art.

As any form of art, this is a lengthy and time consuming process. The benefit of this technique is a delicate image achieved through shading and colouration. The final result is a softer finish, with an old world charm appropriate for many applications.

The Classic Photoceramic can be created in black and white, full colour or sepia depending on customer's preference.

Additional details like a white border or gold trim accentuate the classic photoceramic.

Finally, by selecting a cast bronze frame, you achieve a perfect tribute to memorializing the loved one.
